A MESSAGE from CEO

Thanks to your support, the Aurora Initiative 2017 turned out to be a true landmark effort bearing significance not only for Armenia but also for the global humanitarian community at large. The Aurora Prize ceremony was attended by CEOs of global companies, founders of some of the world's largest philanthropic foundations, political and religious leaders.

By asserting Aurora's principle of Gratitude in Action, our community helps those who are in need today. Aurora is becoming a global humanitarian movement that will snowball to expand the circle of saviors and those saved.

There are already over 250 like-minded thinkers supporting Aurora. We received two thousand applications from volunteers and over one million people tuned in to the ceremony on social media. On top of that, we have featured in over 500 print publications across the globe.

Last year, the million-dollar award helped towards humanitarian projects in Ethiopia, Rwanda, the Democratic Republic of the Congo and Brazil. Thousands of children received aid in the form of food, shelter and educational grants, in addition to medication and clothing.

As you already know, this year's laureate of the Aurora Prize is Dr. Tom Catena, the only doctor to 700,000 people in Sudan's Nuba Mountains. He nominated three charitable organizations helping doctors in African countries as beneficiaries of the award.

It takes a special brand of person to sacrifice their own life in order to save others, but every one of us can help heroes such as Maggie and Tom by following the principle of Gratitude in Action.

Thank you for being at the core of the Aurora movement.

ARMAN JILAVIAN

CEO, the Aurora Humanitarian Initiative

AURORA

HUMANITARIAN INITIATIVE

The Aurora Humanitarian Initiative spans a number of projects, including the Aurora Prize for Awakening Humanity, the Aurora Dialogues, the Aurora Humanitarian Index, the Aurora Gratitude Projects, the Aurora Movement and 100 LIVES.

GRATITUDE in ACTION

Gratitude in Action is the concept that drives the Aurora Humanitarian Initiative. The Aurora Prize co-founders launched the Aurora Humanitarian Initiative with the aim of inspiring those who have received aid in times of crises to express gratitude by offering similar assistance to others. As there are countless survivors around the world who owe their lives to the generosity of others, the co-founders believe we can best acknowledge such benevolence by taking similar action in return. This is GRATITUDE IN ACTION.

By involving Aurora supporters around the world, it is the co-founders' hope that this can become a global endeavor that will snowball to increase the circle of saviors, and most importantly, – the number of those saved.

2017 EVENTS and ACHIEVEMENTS

AURORA PRIZE FOR AWAKENING HUMANITY

The Aurora Prize for Awakening Humanity is a global humanitarian award established to recognize modern day heroes and the exceptional impact their actions have on preserving human life and advancing humanitarian causes in the face of adversity.

The Aurora Prize honors Laureates receives a $100,000 USD grant, as well as the unique opportunity to continue the cycle of giving by nominating organizations that have inspired their work to share a $1,000,000 USD award. An Aurora Prize Laureate will be named each year between 2015 and 2023 in remembrance of the eight-year Armenian Genocide which lasted from 1915–1923.

The inaugural Aurora Prize was awarded in 2016 to Marguerite Barankitse from Maison Shalom and REMA Hospital in Burundi for the extraordinary impact she has made in saving thousands of lives, caring for orphans and refugees during the country's civil war.

2016 AURORA PRIZE ONGOING IMPACT

MARGUERITE BARANKITSE, the 2016 Aurora Prize Laureate, selected the following organizations that inspired her work to share the $1 MILLION AWARD, which has been allocated for 10 initiatives in 5 countries to give no less than 3,000 direct underprivileged beneficiaries a chance for the better future:

2016 AURORA PRIZE: ONGOING IMPACT

The Fondation Jean-François Peterbroeck (Belgium) is using the Aurora Prize Award fund ($333,333) received from the Aurora Prize Award to fund the “INUKA project” in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, which aims to empower girls and young women who’ve been affected by displacement, abandonment, abuse or other hardship via programs aimed at reintegration, education and economic community rehabilitation. Since receiving the funds from the Aurora Prize Award in 2016, the “INUKA project” has been able to hire 9 additional psychologists and social workers, which helped to support up to 500 children. The funds awarded will continue to have an impact on the INUKA project for the next 4 years.

Additionally the Foundation implements a program to support Burundian refugee students in Rwanda by granting micro-credits and training. Until 2018, the program will save 370 students from drugs and working as rebel soldiers.

he Fondation du Grand Duc et de la Grande-Duchesse (Luxemburg) is using the Aurora Prize Award funds ($333,333) received from the Award to finance their project providing for 200 Eritrean refugees arriving in the Mai Aini refugee camp in Ethiopia from Egypt. The project aims to release victims of human trafficking from Egyptian prisons and resettle them into refugee camps in Ethiopia. The funds from the Award will support the project for two years, in addition to providing vocational training and building a training center that can accommodate at least 200 refugees per year. The Foundation also provides microcredit and scholarship programs that support over 1,100 Burundian refugees and locals. The program aims preventing youngsters from being recruited by the militia and preparing them for the future reintegration into their homeland communities.

2016 AURORA PRIZE: ONGOING IMPACT

The Fondation Partage Luxembourg (formerly Briderlech Deelen) is using the Aurora Prize Award funds ($333,333) to offer educational opportunities to young people living in one of the poorest areas of Rio de Janeiro, located in the favela of Morro São Carlos.

The project is called CACEF (Centro de Atividades Comunitarias «Esperança do Futuro») and the funds from the Award will have an impact on the project over the course of 3 years, contributing to a citizen education program for over 200 underprivileged beneficiaries to give them the skills to protect themselves against the lure of drug traffickers and crime.

Additionally, in conjunction with a Catholic Diocese in Rwanda, The Fondation Briderlech Deelen is dedicating funds from the Aurora Prize Award to improve and upgrade school infrastructure in the Gikongoro Province of Rwanda, and to prevent 650 youngsters from becoming criminals and enlisting into armed groups.

2016 AURORA PRIZE: ONGOING IMPACT

The three charitable foundations also support the work of Marguerite Barankitse's organization, Maison Shalom, which provides social and economic assistance to Burundian refugees in Rwanda. The organization provides funding for the refugees' education (secondary & university) and vocational training, in addition to restoring dignity to orphans, street children, formerly imprisoned children and children of poverty-stricken parents. Since its creation in 1993 Maison Shalom has provided aid to over 30,000 orphans and children in need.

2017 AURORA PRIZE LAUREATE and FINALISTS

On May 28, 2017, the Aurora Prize for Awakening Humanity was awarded to DR. TOM CATENA, a Catholic missionary from Amsterdam, New York who has saved thousands of lives as the only doctor permanently based in Sudan's war-ravaged Nuba Mountains where humanitarian aid is restricted.

For the last nine years, Dr. Catena – known by locals as “Dr. Tom” – has been on-call 24 hours a day, seven days a week at the Mother of Mercy Catholic Hospital, caring for more than 750,000 citizens of Nuba. Moreover, Dr. Catena carries out this herculean feat amidst an ongoing civil war between the Government of Sudan and the Sudanese People's Liberation Movement.

2017 AURORA PRIZE CEREMONY

Over 940 guests from 51 countries attended the Aurora Prize Ceremony on May 28, 2017 in Yerevan. Among them were the President of the Republic of Armenia Serzh Sargsyan, Catholicos of all Armenians Karekin II, the Aurora Prize Selection Committee members, Charles Aznavour, representatives of 84 humanitarian organizations and over 100 Aurora Supporters and partners.

Convening the AURORA DIALOGUES

On May 27–28, 2017, distinguished humanitarians, academics, philanthropists, business leaders and members of civil society gathered in Armenia for the second annual Aurora Dialogues: a series of incisive discussions focusing on the most pressing humanitarian concerns the world faces today. More than 600 people including students participated at Aurora Dialogues in 2017.

In keeping with the spirit of the Aurora Prize for Awakening Humanity, the Aurora Dialogues bring individuals who work to end the suffering caused by violence into the spotlight, whilst identifying ideas and programs that deliver notable change. The program covered the refugee crisis, bringing both the causes and responses by governments, civil societies and international organizations to the fore, discussing humanitarian relief, education, human rights and societal integration. Through a series of presentations, panel discussions and Q&A sessions, the participants explored the importance of learning from the past, acting in the present and fostering a better future.

ADDITIONAL AURORA DIALOGUES PROGRAMMING

Distinguished academics and humanitarians attending the Aurora events delivered a series of public lectures on today's most pressing humanitarian challenges. These lectures were held at universities throughout the city of Yerevan.

The Aurora HUMANITARIAN INDEX

The Aurora Humanitarian Index was published during the Aurora Dialogues as part of a weekend of events which culminated with the presentation of the Aurora Prize. The Aurora Humanitarian Index is a global public opinion survey that follows attitudes and trends towards humanitarian issues. It explores the mindset of the public at large towards the responsibility and effectiveness of humanitarian intervention, as well as the motivations that compel people to intervene on behalf of others.

In 2017, 6,466 people were surveyed across 12 countries: Argentina, Armenia, France, Germany, Iran, Japan, Kenya, Lebanon, Russia, Turkey, the UK and US.

The findings indicated: increasing apathy among the poorly informed, as well as among older adults; low trust towards the effectiveness of international organizations and governments; growing skepticism about both individual and collective ability to make a difference; and significant ambivalence towards defending social values over perceived self-interest.

The result is growing isolationism, nationalism and populism. The findings also indicate that there are pockets of hope among younger generations, those that are informed to a greater extent, and amongst women.

GRATITUDE in ACTION

Gratitude in Action is the concept that drives the Aurora Humanitarian Initiative. The Aurora Prize co-founders launched the Aurora Humanitarian Initiative with the aim of inspiring those who have received aid in times of crises to express gratitude by offering similar assistance to others. As there are countless survivors around the world who owe their lives to the generosity of others, the co-founders believe we can best acknowledge such benevolence by taking similar action in return. This is GRATITUDE IN ACTION.

By involving Aurora supporters around the world, it is the co-founders' hope that this can become a global endeavor that will snowball to increase the circle of saviors, and most importantly, – the number of those saved.
